

Strategy Director Spotlight Series: Secondary Schools

Strategy Director Spotlight Series: Secondary Schools

Embracing the Endowment Model and Fighting the Tide of Restricted Giving

When people classify nonprofits by type, higher ed institutions are often grouped together. In truth, private colleges and private secondary schools are much more aligned with each other than public and private higher ed. They tend to have additional expenses - which usually mean greater endowment dependence for private higher and secondary ed institutions.

They are also vulnerable to increasingly restricted donor giving, which is affecting all nonprofits.

Finally, private secondary schools face another hurdle: The size of their endowments can sometimes be too small to allow for a fully diversified portfolio - particularly among alternatives.

How should private secondary schools combat these challenges? Click here to find out.

If you have questions about alternatives implantation given your organization risk, liquidity, and spending needs, please reach out to your TIFF member strategy director, or contact TIFF to learn more.

The materials are being provided for informational purposes only and constitute neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy securities. These materials also do not constitute an offer or advertisement of TIFF's investment advisory services or investment, legal or tax advice. Opinions expressed herein are those of TIFF and are not a recommendation to buy or sell any securities.

TIFF Investment Management

August 30, 2023

Copyright © 2025 TIFF Advisory Services, LLC. All rights reserved. May not be reproduced or distributed without permission.

Strategy Director Spotlight Series: Secondary Schools

Strategy Director Spotlight Series: Secondary Schools

Embracing the Endowment Model and Fighting the Tide of Restricted Giving

When people classify nonprofits by type, higher ed institutions are often grouped together. In truth, private colleges and private secondary schools are much more aligned with each other than public and private higher ed. They tend to have additional expenses – which usually mean greater endowment dependence for private higher and secondary ed institutions.

They are also vulnerable to increasingly restricted donor giving, which is affecting all nonprofits.

Finally, private secondary schools face another hurdle: The size of their endowments can sometimes be too small to allow for a fully diversified portfolio – particularly among alternatives.

How should private secondary schools combat these challenges? Click here to find out.

If you have questions about alternatives implantation given your organization risk, liquidity, and spending needs, please reach out to your TIFF member strategy director, or contact TIFF to learn more.

The materials are being provided for informational purposes only and constitute neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy securities. These materials also do not constitute an offer or advertisement of TIFF's investment advisory services or investment, legal or tax advice. Opinions expressed herein are those of TIFF and are not a recommendation to buy or sell any securities.

TIFF Investment Management

August 30, 2023

Copyright © 2025 TIFF Advisory Services, LLC. All rights reserved. May not be reproduced or distributed without permission.